

CCRI Winter School 2016: Programme

In association with the Royal Geographical Society (with the Institute of British Geographers)
Rural Geography Research Group

Location: Park Campus, University of Gloucestershire, Cheltenham

Jan 13-14th 2016

Wednesday January 13th

Location: Fulwood, Room 013

09:00: Arrivals

09.30: Welcome and Introduction

Student presentations: Session 1

Chair: Julie Ingram

09.45: Examining disease risk communication for disease control management:
implementing biosecurity measures on English cattle farms

Sally Curzon, PhD student, Royal Agricultural University, Cirencester, sally.curzon@student.rau.ac.uk

10:15: Rural Therapeutic Landscapes & the Animality of Care Farming

Richard Gorman, PhD Student, University of Cardiff, GormanR@cardiff.ac.uk

10.45: Using rural research in a policy environment: the experience of the Rural Services
Network and Rural England.

Brian Wilson, Rural England, Rural Services Network

11.15 Coffee break

11.45: Global multifunctional countryside: debates concerning rural change in transition economies (Brazil)

Felipe da Silva Machado, PhD student, Plymouth University, School of Geography, Earth and Environmental Sciences, felipe.dasilvamachado@plymouth.ac.uk

12:05: Sustainable development and Neo-endogenous development: The role of knowledge and local communities in local planning and practice

Susan Marango, PhD Student, University of Lincoln, smarango@lincoln.ac.uk

12:35 Student peer review feedback, summary and discussion

13.00: Lunch: participants purchase own lunch at refectory

14.00: Panel Session

Chair: Jane Mills

Panel: Staff will answer questions from students

Student Presentations 2

Chair: Matt Reed

15:00: Living Landscapes: Understanding The Wildlife Trusts' landscape conservation and their governance

Stephen Pritchard, PhD student, Countryside and Community Research Institute, sgpritchard@btinternet.com

15.30: A transdisciplinary examination of UK arable farmers' knowledge-practices in relation to soil quality.

Stephen Jones, PhD Student, University of Nottingham, lgxsrj@nottingham.ac.uk

16:00 Tea break

16.20: Assessing the impacts of farming practices on soil functions: achieving benefits for soil, water quality and flow and the farm business.

Ed Jones, PhD Student, Countryside and Community Research Institute, EdwardJones@connect.glos.ac.uk

16:40: The Incidence, Understanding and Environmental Impact of Pesticide Use amongst Urban Agriculture Farmers in Ibadan, Nigeria

Ade Bodede, PhD Student, University of Gloucestershire, AdewunmiBodede@connect.glos.ac.uk

17:00: Student peer review feedback, summary and discussion

17.30-18.00 Finish

6.30 Winter School pub dinner

Thursday January 14th

Location: Room LC114A

Student presentations: Session 3

Chair: Chris Short

09.30: Farmers' experiences of flooding and engagement with climate change as a risk issue in Gloucestershire – initial qualitative findings

Alice Hamilton-Webb, PhD student, Royal Agricultural College, alice.hamilton-webb@rau.ac.uk

10:00: Practice and level of Awareness of Good Agricultural Practices among Smallholder Farmers in the adopted villages in Northern, Nigeria

Samson Olayemi Sennuga, PhD Student, School of Agriculture, Royal Agricultural University, Cirencester, samsensennuga@student.rau.ac.uk

10:30: A comparative study proposal of the edible city landscape in London and Beijing

Yao Guo, PhD Student, University of Gloucestershire, yaoguo@connect.glos.ac.uk

10.50 Coffee break

11.10: TBC

Eleanor Hawketts, placement student, CCRI

11:30: Are urban residents disconnected from nature?

Jonathan Wilshaw, MPhil student, University of Gloucestershire, JWilshaw@swindon.gov.uk

12.:00: Student peer review feedback, summary and discussion

12.30-13.00 Finish